BREEN'S STORY PAID $700

The Triple Tie
A Story of Base Ball, Big Business and the Real Thing
in Romance
BY A.H.C. MITCHELL

Begin this great story today if you failed to do so Monday. Read the synopsis of the first two installments printed on Page 12, or, better yet, get copies of yesterday's and Monday's papers and read it from the beginning.

AFTER bluffing around for several weeks, Deery was forced to lay his hand on the table and show his cards. It was then that Deery, too, owned several thousand acres in the neighborhood of the Cain estate's property, which he had acquired several years before through a foreclosure process. And it further appeared that Deery had evolved a vast scheme involving lumber, water power and manufacturing plants, which would net several million dollars if successfully carried out.

But, in order to carry out the plan it was necessary for Deery to not only control the Cain property, but also a vast tract of land that laid between the Deery property and the Cain property. This intermediate property was really the key to the whole situation. Deery counted on first acquiring the Cain holdings and then quietly grabbing up the other.

Horsfall, Autoist
Who Killed Woman,
Now Seeks Pardon

James H. Horsfall, former superintendent of a Lowell drying house, who since January 24 has been serving a six months sentence in the Lowell jail, following his conviction in the East Cambridge Superior Court on the charge of recklessly driving his automobile, when he ran down and killed Mrs. Ruth Kittredge of Tewksbury, has petitioned for a pardon.

PERKS FEARS GREAT REVOLT IN U. S.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Sir Robert Perce, Bart, who sailed today on the Mauretania for London, said: "The idea of liberty in this country is a farce. New York is leaping, and leaping hard, towards despotism. I fear in a few years people return to the elementary form of Christianity there will be a new age of decadence in your country that will be a new world, which will overthrow the whole social system."

LACONIA WILL

Wireless messages from the Commodore Laconia, from Liverpool and Queenstown, received today, indicate that the liner will arrive at the dock in East Boston at 6 o'clock tonight. She can be heard 210 miles. The cable and 3,121 stations passengers.

POSSIBLE SIGNS
CASSIDY
FOOD BILL

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.
WASHINGTON, May 21.—In the next few days the announcement from Cassidy that he had signed the Cassidy-Johnson bill, it now becomes a law. The Governor signed the bill at 11 o'clock last night. The time for voting the measure expired at midnight.

The Cassidy-Johnson bill strikes at the word "knowingly" from a section of the pure food laws of the Commonwealth. Hereafter that little word will give legal refuge to dishonest dealers to sell decayed and unwholesome food. This clause was that they did not "knowingly" sell the food unfit for sale.

The bill was drawn up by Henry P. Cassidy, the AMERICAN'S pure food expert, and J. L. Johnson, a Cambridge food inspector. It is one of the most important pure food measures since the passage of the present session of the Legislature and Mr. Cassidy and supporters of pure food legislation made a strong fight for its enactment.

POPE RECEIVES CARDINAL
O'CONNELL

ROME, May 21.—The Pope received today Cardinal William B. O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, in private audience. The Pope was cordial in his greeting and expressed pleasure at the visit.

MAJOR HURLEY WINS IN BEAUTY CONTEST

"Slick" Harry John Hurley, Mayor of Salem, has added new laurels to his already long list, by winning the title of the most popular and beautiful man in Salem. Mayor Hurley recently attended a beauty contest at an all company affair of a bit of land in Texas, to be given to the most beautiful and popular man in the audience, and John won.

PLY TORCH TO OLD FRIGATE Santee

The old frigate Santee, of Civil War fame, is at last consigned by the Navy Department to the fire of oil stack ships. She will be brought to Boston, broken up and burned for the sake of $10,000 worth of metal in her construction, after being purchased by a Philadelphia firm for $2,000.

We Have
"the Punch"

Theatrical managers are always looking for plays that have, as they phrase it, "the punch."

JOHN L. SULLIVAN'S TRAINER STARVING

NEW YORK, May 21.—Edward Connelley, seventy-six, who says he is at one time was head athletic trainer for the New York Athletic Club, trained John L. Sullivan and was manager for Kid Laconia. He is a native of Ireland and is a resident of the Lockwood place in Hudson.

ROOSEVELT TO SPEND SUMMER IN ARIZONA

NEW YORK, May 21.—Colonel Roosevelt will spend his vacation in Arizona. He will leave here early in July with his wife and will visit four or five weeks in the Southwest.

FREDERICK E. ATTEAUX, null supplier agent, who paid Breen $500 after dynamite talk, according to latter's testimony in Wood trial today.

King and Kaiser
in Warm Embrace
Before Wedding

BERLIN, May 21.—King George of England and Queen Mary arrived today at Potsdam to attend the wedding of Saturday of Princess Victoria Louise, eldest daughter of the Kaiser, and Prince Ernst, son of the Duke of Cumberland. The Kaiser, Empress Augusta Victoria, the Crown Prince and Crown Princess, and Imperial Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg were at the private station at Potsdam to welcome the royal couple. The King and Kaiser exchanged warm and friendly greetings and embraced each other. The Emperor and Queen were also warmly greeted by their guests. Emperor Nicholas was left at Petersburg for Berlin to attend the wedding.

WAIT 14 HOURS TO HEAR CARUSO

LONDON, May 21.—An audience that packed Covent Garden welcomed Caruso after five years of absence. Some enthusiasts had waited for unobserved seats for fourteen hours.

Caruso, as Cantini ("Pagliacci") wept real tears. Critics found his voice less strong but more beautiful than ever. Alice Nippon had appeared in London after several years, and was voted charming, but reportedly did not do herself justice.

SWEARS PITMAN GOT DYNAMITE

Breen's Startling
Story of $500 Deal

Breen testified that at Atteaux's office, the following conversation, in substance, took place:

Breen: If I were fighting these strikers, I'd do it with their own weapons.

Atteaux: How do you mean—dynamite?

Breen: Yes.

Atteaux: Can you get any?

Breen: No.

Atteaux: Perhaps Pitman can.

Breen: Yes, he arranged to get dynamite, and then

Breen said: "I can't do this for nothing."

Atteaux: I haven't any money with me now, I'll give you $500.

Breen: I told Atteaux that I had that afternoon and gave him $500.

John J. Breen, once convicted of "planting" dynamite in Lawrence during the strike there, testified today as a State's witness in the trial of William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen Company, Frederick E. Atteaux, president of the Atteaux Mills Supply Company, and Dennis J. Collins, a Cambridge dock fanatic, on a charge of conspiring to plant the dynamite.

Breen Testified:

That Atteaux paid him $500 on one occasion and $200 on another.

That Ernest W. Pitman, who later killed himself, secured the dynamite which he, Breen, planted in Lawrence.

That Atteaux arranged with Pitman to secure this dynamite.

That the "planting" followed a conversation between Breen and Atteaux in which he "suggested" fighting the strikers with their own weapons.

Breen admitted:

That he took the dynamite to Lawrence, with Collins.

That he and Collins planted it.

SAYS ATTEAUX TOLD HIM
PITMAN WANTED TO DIE

Under cross-examination in the Wood dynamite trial today, Breen said he and Atteaux met at Clark's Hotel, and Atteaux told him that Pitman, the Lawrence contractor, who secured the dynamite, wanted to kill himself. Breen said he told Atteaux there was no need of that, as he, Breen, wouldn't say anything. Pitman later consented suicide after being summoned before the Grand Jury.

CHINA LOAN OVERSUBSCRIBED.

BOSTON WOMEN CALL MOURNING BARBARIC RITE

Society women of Boston today answered the question: How long should society women wear mourning for their dead relatives?

In substance, they said: Mourning should not be worn.

It was the consensus of opinion that it is a survival of the days of barbarism.

What do you think about wearing mourning? Write and tell AMERICAN readers your views.

Here are the opinions of a few Boston society folk. Mrs. Charles P. Putnam, wife of Dr. Putnam of No. 10 Marlboro street, said:

Too Much Mourning.

It seems to me that there is altogether too much mourning worn considering our present enlightened state of civilization. The world is dark enough as it is without women wearing crepe to make it any more gloomy. Moreover, it is a habit of people to hide away from social responsibilities under the cover of mourning; they do it to a large extent in order to protect themselves.

In reality, I suppose that it is kind of a survival of barbarism. Mrs. Henry M. Rogers, wife of Henry M. Rogers, the lawyer, who lives at No. 200 Beacon street, said:

Most of this crepe is worn, not because the people wearing it wish to show their love for the departed, but because most people are afraid of what people would say if they didn't wear it. It is mostly done for the sake of appearance only. Some wear it in order to get sympathy for the affliction and work upon the susceptibility of other people. The whole thing is greatly overdone.

Danger of Overdoing.

Mrs. Matthew Hale, wife of the Progressive leader.

I do not think that one should remain in mourning very long. It is hard to get a definite idea of the wearing of mourning as people's ideas on that subject differ so widely. For myself I should say that the personal feelings of the people concerned should be trusted instead of the conventional customs in the matter. There is always a danger of overdoing the thing.

WILLIAM SHEINWALD, 40 Summer St.

N. B. REMEMBER—I AM COMING BACK SEPT. 1st WITH A BRAND NEW FALL STOCK. I am sure you will miss me the two months that I am out of business, during July and August. I am the man who forced down the prices of shoes in Boston and compelled the big stores to put in bargain basements in an effort to compete with me. I am the first man to sell women's shoes as low as 67c—a man's shoe as low as $1.35—a boy's shoe as low as 67c—and a child's shoe as low as 37c.

According to the construction company's time estimate I have only 35 more days to occupy my present store at 40 Summer Street. I can at present find no street floor store to let in the shopping district that is big enough for this enormous stock of shoes. IF I PUT THE SHOES IN STORAGE I MUST LOSE MONEY BECAUSE THE SUMMER MODELS WILL NOT BE SELLING WHEN THE BUILDING IS FINISHED. I can't sell to any dealer because NONE OF THEM IS BIG ENOUGH TO HANDLE THIS ENORMOUS STOCK—not even the biggest department stores. No big retailer of shoes ever found himself in such a helpless position. Since there is no use crying over spilt milk the only thing for me to do is to THROW THE WHOLE STOCK ON THE MARKET AT SACRIFICE PRICES. First come, first served—the public, the big dealers, the small retail shoe dealers, anyone and everyone—one pair of shoes or one hundred pairs. All treated alike, no two prices, every pair marked in plain figures—nothing reserved. N. B.—This is all new stock that came in after the fire.

FENIAN RESCUER

STATE HEALTH BOARD FIGHTS PORTS LIFE

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

The high and mighty members of the State Board of Health, who refused a hearing to me in my pure food campaign backed by the AMERICAN, are fighting for their official lives today after the grilling they received yesterday before the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives on a hearing to reorganize the board.

It was one of the worst indictments of ineffectiveness a State board ever had to listen to. They were made victims of the charges. That the members were foolish and fuddy-duddy, incompetent and inefficient. That an assistant secretary, Dr. William C. Hanson, who never wrote a prescription, never engaged in practice, was really the head of the board.

That the secretary, Dr. Mark W. Richardson, was an examiner for a life insurance company he had no time to give to the protection of public health. That the board was a mere engineering member of the board.

That the board was a mere engineering member of the board. That the board was a mere engineering member of the board. That the board was a mere engineering member of the board.

Get a "Dogstick" If You Want to Be Real Fashionable

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The latest thing in Washington is the dogstick. It is carried as a walking stick by the society set. It is topped by a replica of their favorite dog or horse, made in ivory or silver.

The Misses Allen, daughters of General Allen, U. S. A., known as the best horsewoman among the society girls of the capital, are responsible for this fad. Among other women carrying dogsticks are Miss Katherine Jennings, Miss Katherine Britton and Miss Katherine Kilian.

who had drafted the bill in committee. "Of course," said Mr. Higlow, with a smile, "representative hood street was not the one to draft this bill which affects the health of 2,000,000 people."

Mr. Higlow gathered an array of talent from the Black Bay to oppose the bill. All these persons used by Milton P. Rosens, a recently appointed member of the board, as their trump card. With such men as Professor Rosens, they all said, there was no need of a paid lobbyist such as the bill provided.

But Dr. Donaghy, whose scholarly presentation of the declared illness of the board made him a leading figure in the fight, was not to be deterred. He pointed out that in Philadelphia a paid board of health had been set up, and that in the highest health in health circles.

The coming board, Dr. Donaghy showed, handles the great problem of health, leaving the administration of details to the paid board.

CARMEN THROUG TO DEBATE ON TROLLEY BILL

Every motorman and conductor in Boston how could get off duty today in the State House to witness the fight in the House on the bill to regulate their hours of labor. There were hundreds of blue-uniformed men in the galleries and corridors when debate began.

The Street Railway Committee has reported favorably a bill providing for a day of nine and a half hours' work in twelve. The elevated company supports this bill. The street car company, however, is opposed to it.

The bill provides that the street car company shall operate its cars for a period of nine and a half hours, and that the elevated company shall operate its cars for a period of nine and a half hours.

PITMAN WARNED ATTEAUX OF COMING SUICIDE

Startling Testimony as to Lawrence Contractor's Death Is Given by Breen.

Time that you would have tried to have put a candle in that hall. A—No, I don't remember.

Q—Where did you go then? A—We drove to Matteson's apartment on the corner.

Q—Do you remember trying to go to the house on May 17? A—No, I never said that.

Q—Is there a mill near the corner? A—Yes, the Arlington Mill is about a thousand feet away.

Q—What did you do with the rest of the dynamite?

the dynamite? A—Took it home and put it up in a little place on the second floor.

Q—Did you have any further communication with Inspector Hennessey? A—Yes, I telephoned to him from Lawrence on the night of January 19 that I had saved two others when dynamite had been planted.

Meet Boston Officers.

He said he would come over the road in a week. I told him that there was a lot of dynamite in the house and that he could come in the morning train, which he did. I told him that Father Sullivan of the Lawrence police would meet him. I wanted to help out Kellison. I saw C. J. Marshall Sullivan and asked him if Kellison could do some special work for the next morning and he was arranged. I took Kellison to the drug store about 9 o'clock on the first day.

We drove to the clothing shop on Chestnut street, where I sold him a pair of pants. Then I left him and went to the police station. There I met Inspector Hennessey and the state police. I told them where they could find the dynamite. I drew a plan to help them. I paid Kellison $25 more that day and told him he could go home that night.

Q—Did you tell him to keep an eye on Kellison and that was the word? A—No, I didn't have.

Breen testified how a number of foreigners were arrested in connection with the dynamite plot, some coming with a letter in their arms and now he was arrested himself nine days later, charged with conspiracy. He said his trial in the Superior Court began May 20 and that he was convicted on May 15 and fined $100.

Q—Did you meet Mr. Atteaux in April? A—Yes, it was on a holiday at Mr. Atteaux's home.

Q—Did you talk with him about money? A—No, I didn't.

Before the witness could answer Attorney Conkey asked District Attorney Pelletier waived the question.

Q—Did you see Atteaux at any other place? A—No, I saw him at his office.

Got $200 More from Atteaux.

I said to him that I would like a little more money. I said my expenses were heavy and that I would like the money if he had any handy. He said he did not have any handy, but that he would send me some. About two days later he sent me $200 in registered mail. This made $700 which the witness said Atteaux gave him. The money came in a plain envelope which contained four fifty-dollar bills. It was delivered at my office by a boy named Charley. Breen was asked to identify a boy who will be introduced as a witness to give the exact date when the letter was delivered.

Q—What was your reason in wanting to put dynamite where Breen was speaking? A—Nothing in particular.

Q—How was a strike leader, wasn't he? A—Yes.

Q—Did you know him? A—No.

E. W. PITMAN who, Breen testified today in Wood dynamite trial, got the dynamite and gave it to him. Pitman killed himself on the eve of the Grand Jury inquiry.

Others Breen's Record.

District Attorney Pelletier drew through the most recent dealing with Breen concerning the counting and sending and placing the dynamite in Lawrence, even which charge he was found guilty and fined $100.

Q—Did you usually in your own trial? A—No, I did not.

Q—Being in the office in your court? A—No, in a number of the courts.

Q—What is your telephone number? A—I have two numbers.

Q—What are they? A—Lawrence 1520 and 2237 W.

Then following the direct examination of Breen by District Attorney Pelletier, Attorney Conkey then took the witness in hand for cross-examination.

Q—Did you hear the explosion on Monday morning this morning? A—No, I did not.

Q—Did you intend to have them arrested? A—No, I did not.

Q—Did you at any time conspire with others to ignite and charge the dynamite with living in their possession this dynamite? A—No, I did not.

Q—Did you, with Ernest W. Pitman, Frederick E. Atteaux, and Wood, and Leonard J. Collins, conspire to falsify evidence to the strikers, these things? A—No, I did not.

Then Attorney Conkey read the different paragraphs contained in the indictment.

Q—Did you intend to do those things? A—No, I did not.

No Particular House Named.

Breen said today that he did not know whose house he was to put the dynamite in. I agreed to put it in some house, but no particular house was named.

Q—You think that you met Atteaux on the train once previous to the strike? A—Yes.

Q—Didn't you tell the District Attorney that up to the time of the strike you didn't know who was Fred E. Atteaux? A—No, I did not know him.

He introduced himself to me.

Q—You mentioned of a conversation you had with Mr. Atteaux in Clark's Hotel. Is that the conversation which the District Attorney tried to deny?

I object to that question," said District Attorney Pelletier.

"Very well, strike out the word 'denied,'" said Attorney Conkey. "Now, Mr. Breen, do you know why the District Attorney said I wish to have you mention that conversation at Clark's Hotel? A—No.

Q—Did you know him? A—No.

Declares Pitman Gave Him Dynamite on Washington Street, Boston.

Pitman Wanted to Die.

Q—Well, what did you and Mr. Atteaux talk about at Clark's Hotel that day? A—Mr. Atteaux said that Pitman wanted to kill himself.

He said that Pitman's daughter was sick with the measles and that he was afraid. I promised Atteaux that I would do anything. I told him that I would do anything for Pitman to kill himself, that I would talk.

Q—What was the room that you and Atteaux talked about last conversation with Atteaux at Clark's Hotel? A—The first I ever mentioned it was when I told the District Attorney at the trial that morning.

Q—Are you positive of that fact? A—To the best of my recollection, I am positive.

CONSERVATION IS ASKED FOR FATHER'S SAKE

Miss Josephine E. Lagerquist of Dorchester, editor of the Textile Review, testified at East Cambridge today, in the hearing on the petition she and her sister have brought for a conservator to be appointed for their father, Mr. James M. Lagerquist. One reason given for the petition is:

"No father will be left alone and have divorce cases filed against him every day."

Mrs. Lagerquist has been in the newspaper work on account of having made five separate attempts to secure divorce from her husband, Ed. She is fifty-seven, and he is seventy-three. Mrs. Lagerquist has tried three times in this state and has been in Reno for two other efforts.

Mrs. Josephine E. Lagerquist and her sister, Mrs. Adelle S. Nelson, ask that ex-Mayor Walter C. Washburn of Cambridge be named conservator of their father's property.

Mrs. Lagerquist testified in part: "My father used to bring home liquor, hiding it in four locked boxes, under the bed, and I would find the bottles and break them."

Mrs. Lagerquist said she would go to the end of the earth to get a divorce. She said, "I am not going to get it, and would let the property go to the mortgagee, rather than let father have it."

Mrs. Lagerquist also said that her mother had asked Mr. Lagerquist out of the house, which he was living. The hearing is before Judge McIntyre in Middlesex Probate Court.

A third man who was arrested received a cut on the scalp in a fight with the police. He was cared for at a doctor's office.

A Health Measure

The Meany Milk Bill, now awaiting action in the Legislature, would compel the printing of a label "OUT OF STATE MILK" to be put on every bottle and can coming from beyond Massachusetts lines. This would put a stigma on the farms and dairies of the States to the north of us, and why?

- Q. Is it on the score of distance?
- A. Thousands of farms in New Hampshire are nearer to Boston than the greater part of Massachusetts.
- Q. Is it on the score of cleanliness?
- A. This State enforces no milk supervision (as the recent attempt to pass the Ellis Bill shows), while that of the city of Boston is the same for all places that attempt to supply this city, whether within or without the State. If Massachusetts had any standard of cleanliness, enforced by State authority, there might be some point in such a restriction.

The Federal constitution was adopted to brush away all barriers in interstate trade. This bill is the device of a few selfish milk producers in Massachusetts, to put their competitors in the States to the north at a great disadvantage.

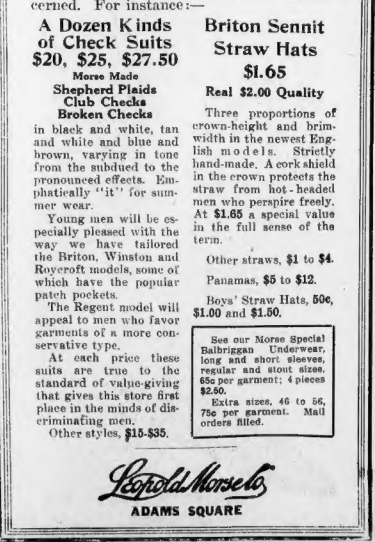

How would Massachusetts like to have New Hampshire compel the affixing of an "OUT OF STATE" mark on all shoes and other manufactured goods from their State?

We bring this to the attention of the public because we know this bill is to their disadvantage.

How to Reward Your Publisher

Make Him Ambassador to England, as President Wilson Has Done. But, if Possible, Unlike President Wilson, SELECT A MORE SUITABLE PUBLISHER.

(Copyright, 1913, by Eric C. C. C.)

Mr. Page, the publisher of books and periodicals, is WOODROW WILSON'S PUBLISHER.

And Woodrow Wilson's Ambassador to England is Mr. Page, who is Mr. Wilson's Publisher.

Naturally, certain citizens are surprised to find the publisher whose industry and efforts have contributed to Mr. Wilson's income chosen as Ambassador at a good salary.

Even if Mr. Page is the most suitable man in the world for the post—which he is not—it would be unusual for a President of the United States to give a position of that kind to his own business associate.

It may be said by way of excuse for President Wilson that, while there is a certain impropriety in paying business obligations with any public office, there is, perhaps, less scandal and public injury in using an Ambassadorship for the payment of a private obligation than in using more important offices for such payments.

An Ambassador in these days of ocean cables, "wireless," and fast mails, is so far as actual work goes, a mere messenger boy who takes the message from our State Department to the foreign government and receives the answer.

An Ambassadorship is important as a political reward, because we have in this country many nobles, eager to be the society representative in foreign social circles, and willing to pay in advance for the honor.

The American Ambassador is, with few exceptions, a gentleman of society ambition, rewarded with a chance to become acquainted with foreign society, and to draw a salary at the same time.

An American Ambassador to England, especially, is one who ardently cultivates foreigners, who are amused at his simplicity, and keeps as far as possible away from his own compatriots, in order to enjoy refined foreign society atmosphere, pure and unadulterated—except by himself.

Under ordinary circumstances Mr. Wilson's employment of the rather useless and considerably discredited Ambassadorship to reward campaign contributors and business assistants would be of secondary importance.

The important item in the rewarding of Mr. Wilson's publisher with an Ambassadorship is the fact that Mr. Page, the chosen Ambassador, is particularly objectionable to the radical and labor elements, both at home and abroad.

Since we must send Americans to represent us in foreign countries, our Presidents ought at least to select for the work men willing to go through the motions of representing the American idea.

Mr. Page, unfortunately, represents the ideas that were credited to Mr. Wilson before he became a candidate, ideas that he expressed in his own writings, ideas concerning the inferiority of the workingman, ideas that Mr. Wilson steadily and vociferously disclaimed while running for office.

Mr. Page believes, and says he believes, the very things that Mr. Wilson said that HE did not believe, once he had become a candidate.

Mr. Page has opposed good pay for workmen, and has been conspicuous in the breaking up of workmen's unions.

Mr. Page, who is chosen to represent all Americans, including the working class, presumably, is best known as a persistent and successful fighter against every class of workmen employed in his own business.

Mr. Page is the man who moved his own business away from New York City that he might be free of union wages and union conditions.

The money that he made for Mr. Wilson, in publishing the latter's books, or the money that he paid to Mr. Wilson for special contributions to the Page periodicals, was made by non-union labor.

It is natural that the working people of England, united, as our working people are here, in the effort to obtain better working conditions through organization, should protest, as they have protested, against accepting Mr. Page as an Ambassador.

It is certainly a deliberate affront to the working people of this country that Mr. Wilson should select for the most desirable and ardently coveted foreign post a man who is known chiefly because of his success in opposing and disintegrating organizations of workingmen.

The English workers have expressed their objection formally—they quote the New York Times:

London, May 15.—The London Trades Council, representing 50,000 trade unionists, passed a resolution tonight expressing resentment at the appointment of Walter H. Page as American Ambassador to Great Britain on the ground that he is a bitter opponent of organized labor, and asking Sir Edward Grey, the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, to protest against receiving him. A copy of the resolution has been sent to the President of the United States and to Sir Edward Grey, and every trade and labor council in the Kingdom has been invited to pass a similar resolution.

The London Trades Council took this action on a letter from the Allied Trades Council of Greater New York.

Officers of the Allied Printing Trades Council of New York said that their organization considered as Mr. Page to be antagonistic to the interests of union labor, and that Thomas Carroll, secretary of the council, had been instructed by a vote of the council's officers to send to London a letter protesting against Mr. Page's appointment. This letter, it was stated, reviewed the controversy of the union organization with the firm of Doubleday, Page & Co., whose Garden City plant is operated as an open shop. Union leaders who participated in the controversy, it was explained, emerged from it with the conviction that Mr. Page harbored a deep personal resentment against labor unions and their leaders. For that reason, they felt it to be their duty to notify British union leaders of Mr. Page's views.

American workers feel that a radical administration, so called,

What's the Use?

Here he is. You know him. The fellow who says "It's all been done. What's the use of barking your shins scrambling over the rough places? Do JUST ENOUGH to hold your job and get fat."

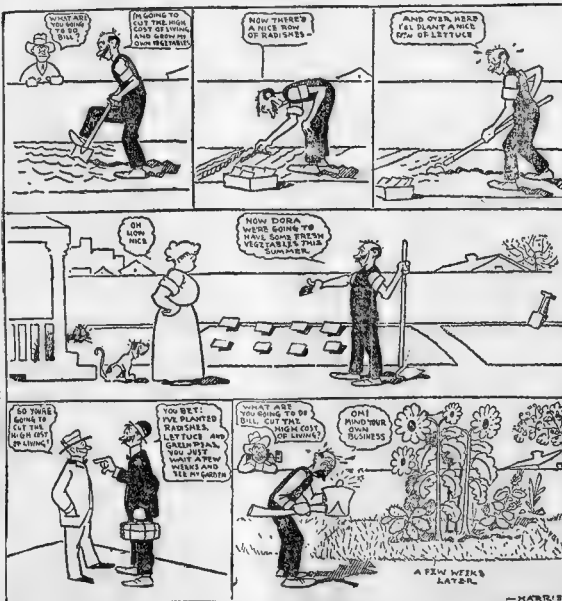

You know him, of course. And you've seen the other fellow, too, the one who doesn't know that it's all been done, and goes right ahead as though everything was new. The fellow who does more than he's paid for, who is on the job all the time, alive and trying. After awhile he goes ahead while the fellow in the picture stands still. Suddenly the lazy guy thinks, "Gee, there IS something in real work and real interest," but by that time he's miles behind.

The hours and days that he wasted in moaning and grumbling don't come back. Those hours and days are the WHITE HOPE of existence. THEY NEVER COME BACK.—TAD.

How Your Mind Can Gain Health

By GARRETT P. SERVICE

A GREAT doctor once said: "Successful practice requires one-third science and two-thirds savoir faire" (knowing how to do it).

By that meant impressing the imagination of the patient, and impressing it the right way. Any doctor can affect his patient's imagination, but many send its mesmeric spirit dropping downward like a thermometer in a cold wave. If doctors ever really do kill their patients it is through what they administer to the mind.

We are only just beginning to learn something to the extent of the mind's control over health and disease. Many persons are willing to admit that the mind influences nervous affections, and that the imagination may either bring them on or drive them away; but they refuse to believe that mental influence can extend to the cure of diseases which produce "lesions"—i. e., physical injuries to certain parts of the body.

But they are wrong in their skepticism. The imagination can influence the whole body. It can produce lesions as well as heal them. There never has been a great epidemic in which a large percentage of the mortality was not the result of mental upset. Mere fear kills like a lightning stroke by paralyzing the nervous system, whereupon the bodily machinery tears itself to pieces through loss of the central control.

I do not suppose that the imagination ever broke a bone or set one, but I am sure that it has either saved or lost the life of many a sick person, according to the way in which it happened to be directed; either by the will of the patient himself or by the guiding influence of a doctor or a nurse.

The Successful Physician Inspires His Patient with Confidence

The successful doctor is the man who enters the sick room with his face full of cheer and of masterful confidence, and not with his pockets full of pills. The good nurse is worth her pay because she keeps her patient cheerful and confident. When you choose a doctor for your family, select one whose look makes you feel stronger. His presence will be like that of Napoleon on the battlefield.

It is not sympathy that heals; too much sympathy sometimes kills. It is confidence that does the good work. Away with your nose-peeking doctor—unless it happens that behind the grave face there is an appearance of power, for that is worth more than all else in breeding confidence in the patient.

"There Is Plenty of Joy to Go 'Round"

By Lillian Laury

THERE is plenty of joy to go 'round, you know. To see this you're just about bound to know. For the truth of it's easily found—and so it is foolish to envy the chap who's arrived. For the thing is so sweetly and neatly contrived. That although you're still climbing while he is on top—If you're simply keep going and soon the word "won't" will be found. Why you'll get there at last, And his hour will be past. When you're just about to be glad. Oh, yes, I'll be bound. That the doctor's quite wrong—There is plenty of joy to go 'round.

There is plenty of work to go 'round you know. And your share can be easily found you know. If to do your part you feel quite bound And go A-looking for work that you only can do. Or setting your task if "your task won't fit you."

There is plenty of joy to go 'round, you know. That there's joy in just doing your work, heart and soul. So you're sure to arrive, And be really alive. To the bliss that is found In the garb of work toward. That your labor is crowned—And there's plenty of joy to go 'round.

which was begging for their votes and promising the sun and the moon a few months ago, should not pay its business debts at the expense of the labor voters who supported it.

Putting an enemy of organized labor who happens to be the President's publisher into an important ambassadorship, and simultaneously passing the tariff bills which will put workers out of employment and reduce their wages in hundreds of thousands of cases, is not exactly the combination that was looked for by the workmen who voted for the Democratic ticket last November.

It was at that Bill Smith expected to "show up" the aspirant for a place on his team. To be sure, the manager had not handed a ball in nearly five months, and his arm was in no condition to put any "trick" on it. Still he figured he might throw up most any kind of ball and have Kelly tumbling all over himself to hit it; that is, he figured that way until the recruit took his stand at the plate and saved his last act as well as though it was a brouette. Instead of forty three ounces of solid, well-seasoned meat "Buns of Anon," murmured Smith again "What do you know about that lot? Well, how goes?"

Swinging his right arm in a circle several times and then describing several "and so forths" in the air with the ball, Bill Smith raised his left foot on high, and as it came down on the earth he delivered the ball with as much speed as he could put behind it.

MISS BORDEN BLAMES FATHER FOR SPANKINGS

LOS ANGELES, May 22. Borden, who is with her mother after being found in Boston by father, had of the milk trust, today charged her recent runaway episode as "simply to show my father that he will and my determination were just strong as his." She added:

"It may be that I am my father's daughter in every respect. I admit the strong headstrong, but as for the rest, we hate nothing at all, common. We never quarrelled. He has pulled and spanked me from the time I was old enough to toddle."

One paper printed last I was a case of my father and mother separating. That is untrue. He is to blame for our home being divided. My father was positive genius in mood."

He chose as my companions a tree and old, Indian looking women, children—and I hate them. I was always rude to them too."

TWO DECISIONS BY SUPREME COURT

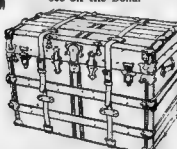

The verdicts awarded Nellie T. Fitzgerald and Edward H. Ryan for personal injuries and to the City of Boston for damages to its street department automobile, in their suit against the Boston and Northern Street Railway Company as the result of a collision in street car, which happened on May 10, 1910, were announced today, according to a decision of the full bench of the supreme court made today, which overrules the exceptions of the defendant. The full bench also decides that suit lost or motor lost kept at a car in the State, even though owned by one living in another State, may be taxed here as personal property. This is the result of the suit of John A. Tobolski, collector, against Edward H. Ryan of Marlborough, N. J.

Cleaner—Cooler The All-Gas Kitchen

Gas cooking the year round is an important step toward home-improvement. An all-gas kitchen increases efficiency, lessens expense and eliminates all the drudgery, uncertainty and hardship attendant on coal as a fuel. When you use a gas range you are sure of results because of the perfect regulation of the flame. The gas water heater insures plenty of hot water for bathing—for wash days—in time of sickness. This is the only way you can obtain it quickly, conveniently, cheaply.

This Cabinet Range

Is but one of the many shown at the Gas Appliance Dept. on West Street. Has a large baking oven, broiler, and side oven lined with aluminum-rolled steel. Door at side of broiling oven doors, forming shelf. Absolutely rust-proof. Four top and one summer burner.

Information on gas installation and equipment freely given upon application. Call or phone Gas Appliance Dept. for representative. Booklet, entitled "Kitchen Comfort" free upon request.

$6,000

SIX thousand dollars for an American motor car is the highest price; and yet $6,000 for the Alco is fully justified. It is designed, built, sold and intended to serve only that limited clientele who always seek the best at any cost.

We ask $6,000 for the Alco because it possesses what many engineers believe to be the best motor they have ever driven. This motor was designed by M. Berlet of Lyons, France, and put into his famous car, the "Berlet". Subsequently he sold the American rights to us. We imported parts made by him and selected French mechanics to build this motor. Many of these men are still with us in our works at Providence.

Engineers, other than our own, say they have never been able to find a "point of vibration" in the Alco at any speed. This is considered the highest tribute that can be paid to a motor. It costs us to build this motor a sum that would purchase a very good low priced car.

THE GREATEST MARKDOWN PIANO SALE EVER HELD IN BOSTON

Sale Starts Tomorrow at 8:30 A.M. and Continues Until Every Piano is Sold AT THE WAREROOMS OF CHAS. S. NORRIS, 181 TREMONT STREET, BOSTON

We have more than One-Hundred, New and Slightly Used Pianos of all makes, the best in America. Instruments of highest value—well known to the people of Boston as the World's Best. We are going to sacrifice every one of them—will sell at a price, Cash or Credit that will permit any reader of this paper to get a fine piano, for less money than ever before quoted by any Piano House in Boston.

ARE YOU Music Hungry?

Just starving to hear some sweet melody, to hear the old songs beautifully played—To hear your favorite operas—To hear your favorite composer—And you cannot play a note. It is for you and other music-hungry souls that science produced THE

Autopiano

The World's Greatest Player-Piano

Will play for you (without any knowledge of music or playing on your part) the world's greatest music, new and old. All opera and popular music prepared for the Autopiano as soon as published and loaned our patrons without charge.

The Autopiano is the world's greatest player-piano. It is the most musical of all self-playing instruments and is endorsed by the most famous artists of our time. Will play for you (without any knowledge of music or playing on your part) the world's greatest music, new and old. All opera and popular music prepared for the Autopiano as soon as published and loaned to you without charge by the sole Boston Agent, Chas. S. Norris, 181 Tremont street.

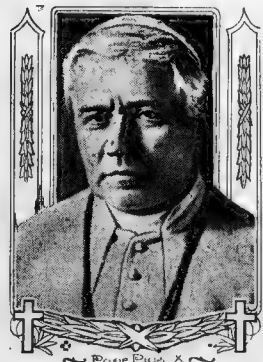

A great many people have in their home what is practically a "dead piano." No one knows how to play it—son and daughter who used to play and entertain the family have married and the piano is now merely an expensive ornament. Now is the time to get an Autopiano—put the music roll, start it—That's all you have to do.

You can exchange your old piano for an Autopiano. We have a plan that will allow you to exchange, giving you the full value for your exchange.

Praise for the AUTOPIANO from His Holiness, Pope Pius X.

Permission to publish granted to Charles S. Norris,
181 Tremont Street, Boston

POPE PIUS X.

Although many medals have been awarded to the Autopiano, no honor received is considered greater than that bestowed on this marvelous instrument by His Holiness, Pope Pius X., who presented the Autopiano Co. with a handsome gold medal as a recognition of the artistic merit of the Autopiano.

The following letter accompanied the medal:

Sancti—His Holiness charges me to thank you for the beautiful instrument just received, and desires that I send you the two medals inclosed, one for Gustin Wright & Co. and the other for The Autopiano Co., as a recompense for its artistic merit.

FANS EAGER TO SEE MURPHY IN BOUT AT ARENA

By RINGSIDE.

Kidie Murphy has at last come in for his own. The South Boston boys are showing against the skillful Jack Britton in their second battle in Kenosha. Kidie is far from being a back number. He more than held his own with Britton and would have been hailed as a winner if he had not slipped up in the sixth round. As it was, two Chicago newspapers gave Murphy the decision. And Britton has lived in Chicago the greater part of his life, too. Several reports went out from Chicago claiming that Murphy was killed in the fight, when he was knocked out at the end of the first round. It is to be regretted that these stories were printed in some of our Boston papers. We have seen enough good local boys to declare them losers when they win or get a draw at the least.

Murphy would make a fine card at the Albee Club. Many "fans" would like to see Kidie pitted against Britton here, back to back, in a third fight, but according to the latest reports from Kenosha, Murphy refused Morgan's proposal and also beat him at all points.

There evidently is a great deal of truth in the story that Murphy was not himself when he was knocked out by Britton here. Mickey McBride, manager of Murphy, has wired the writer that Kidie will probably clash with Power McFarland in a few weeks.

BASEBALL CHATTER

"Jaws" McGraw, boss of the Giants, is a very nervous person these days. "Jaws" who has taken to writing pieces for the paper, solemnly declared a few days back that the Cardinals were traveling far ahead of their speed, he insisted they were flashier-than-usual and emphasized the fact that just as soon as the Cards went against a good team they would be so badly beaten that the Cardinals would have a difficult time assembling their frames for burial.

To date the Giants have clashed twice with the Cardinals and twice the "Jaws" have won. McGraw and McGraw and Yarnall, his star star pitcher, are out of St. Louis, with the result that the Cardinals knocked thirty out of the box and then turned around and crumpled Yarnall in rather easy fashion. The Cardinals are now within one point of the third place of the Giants.

Over in Brooklyn they are forming trading parties today for the purpose of acquiring Kline, an umpire person, to a very high fee. Kline gave some of the clubs yesterday that were wanted and have some of them who are looking at the Dodgers, who eventually took the case.

The Phillies pointed out twenty hits in eight innings yesterday, including three doubles, a triple and a home run. Cavanah braved the swatters with five hits out of six in the ninth at the bat. Unfortunately the Phillies garnered twelve runs, while the Reds drew also goose eggs.

The White Sox engineered one of the greatest ninth inning rallies of the season yesterday, scoring six runs, but their tally fell short, and the Red Sox won the game 10 to 9.

The two straight defeats of the Dodgers and the two victories of the Phillies had widened the gap between the teams to nearly 100 points, and it looks as though the Brooklyn fans dream of next year's season in the league won't count for a week or so at least.

Those who believe in the Spring showing of ball teams as a basis for "doping" the outcome of the season to say may witness the following: The Giants took the measure of practically every team they played during the training series, yet they have had a mighty task in winning fifteen out of twenty nine league games. The Phillies, who were the easiest proposition struck during any season during the Spring season, and were expected to be the best of the bunch, are out of twenty six contests.

The semi-architect—sometimes known as New York sport writers—resumed operations today. They blamed the lack of hitting, poor base running, fielding errors and the poor condition of the pitcher. They said, however, that except for these few minor defects, the Giants are playing a fine game of baseball.

Outfielder Clee was the only Yankee to secure a hit off pitcher Sam Houston of the Browns yesterday.

Williams, a pinch hitter for the Reds, now tied up the score with a home run in the ninth inning yesterday and his team beat out the Naps.

GAG RULE FOR CUBS:
TALKING BASEBALL
WILL COST MEN $100

I will cost any Cub other than Manager Evers an even $100 to be caught talking baseball with a newspaper man hereafter all interviews with Cubs are to be taboed if President Murphy, now here with the club, is able to put through the latest of his innovations.

"I am going to fine any and all of my players $100," declared President Murphy, "if they are found talking baseball with any newspaper men. I don't intend to have my club wrecked and torn to pieces by these stories that emanate from the players."

Union Bricklayers—Union Shoemakers
Union Car Conductors—Union Freight
Handlers—Union Plumbers AND ALL OTHER UNION MEN

Do you realize that the clothing dealers of this country object to putting in the union labels in garments because there is absolutely no demand for them? I was the first to sign for union conditions in this city, and I am the first to put union labels in every garment turned out in my shop, and whether you buy of me or not, I say to you that the by-laws of your union insist that you ask and demand a union label in every garment you order.

My prices are the lowest in Boston, and when I put a union label in the garment you can rest assured it costs me more to produce than the tailor who does not use the union label. Any union man knows that the best class of mechanics in the country belong to the union. The makeshift mechanic does not consider it necessary to join.

Now, I want to continue using the label, and I want every union man coming into my store to say to the salesman: "I am a union man and insist on the union label," so you can convince me that your unionism isn't altogether selfish, and that your interests in unionism cease when you leave the plumbing shop or the bricks. This policy adopted by all unionists would be a great benefit to the union tailors as a whole.

I have just made a purchase of W. E. Tillotson Mfg. Co.'s sample ends, from Pittsfield, Mass. This is the last word in fine woolsens. Every style possible to conceive is represented here, including all the fine soft pencil stripes, single and double lines, beautiful small checks, sharkskin weaves and plain blues and grays. This range of goods is easily worth $40 and $50, which is charged for them by the average tailor and clothier.

THE TRIPLE TIE

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

The Most Absorbing New Serial Any
Newspaper Has Published in Years

What Has Gone Before

It still rains at 10 o'clock in the morning of March 3. A young man jumps off a street car in front of the Atlanta baseball grounds. Just as he does so, without any preliminary spatters, rain begins to fall in torrents, and he hears the scream of a woman and a hoarse yell of "out out of the way!"

He jumps but not quite quickly enough. The wheel of a flying auto strikes his feet and sends him sprawling in the mud. The car turns and returns. It is a man and woman, who address one another as Forrest and Mildred. The man is overbearing and insolent, but the girl jumps out of the car, holds out her hand to the young man and tells him how sorry she is for the mishap.

After the others have gone, the young man enters the ball grounds and, hunting up Bill Smith, the manager of the Atlanta Club, tells him his name is Gordon Kelly and that he wants to play ball on his team. At the same time admitting that he never played on any club and that he never even saw a ball game in his life; but that he had read in the newspapers about Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker and the salaries and that it looked good to him. He also asserts that he has made a study of baseball and knows all about it.

After the manager receives from him the first surprise, Kelly says to him: "Nothing like that, Mr. Smith," he said solemnly. "Here's my proposition: The Southern League championship season opens on April 10, about six weeks from now. What I want you to do is this: Give me permission to practice here with you and your players until the season opens. If by that time I haven't demonstrated my worth to you as a ball player, just say so, and we will part. But if I am convinced, if, on the other hand, I do demonstrate to you that I am entitled to a place on your team, I will ask that you sign me up at whatever salary you care to pay me."

The manager to him he will give him a tryout under these conditions. Mildred and Forrest Cain enter. They have a quarrel as the way to her home, as she is disgusted with his conduct. After leaving her at her home, he changes his clothes and goes to his club, where he has a luncheon engagement with Gabe Deery, Mildred's father, who is a speculator in timber lands. Cain, who is a wealthy young man, owns several thousand acres in the southwestern part of the State and Henry has made him an offer for the property. He tells him that a young man named Gordon Kelly owns a big piece of land between their two properties that they need to carry out their plans, and asks Cain to get acquainted with Kelly and make things pleasant for him.

That same afternoon Gordon Kelly goes out to the ball park and puts on a uniform. Bill Smith makes ready to pitch to him and Gordon stands at the plate, waving his hat back and forth.

"Watch it, Old Man Anson," murmured Bill Smith to himself. "Where did the kid get that pose, I wonder?"

Now Go On With the Story

As the ball sailed up to the plate, Kelly took one step straight forward and drove his bat against the horse hide. There was a resounding crash and the ball shot like a rifle bullet on a line toward right field. The further it went the more speed it seemed to acquire and instead of traveling in a rainbow curve, it appeared to rise in the air.

With a loud report it crashed into the side of the mammoth, intimate figure of the bull which adorns the ball park of every league club in the country. There was a sound of splintering wood and the ball disappeared from view, leaving a large hole in the side of the proud wooden animal.

"Lordy, Lordy, what a swell!" ejaculated Whiskey, who had been surreptitiously watching the proceedings on the diamond from the runway under the grand stand. "Ah, just what I needed. Member ever seen 'nuthin' like dat on derey grounds before?"

Bill Smith gazed long and earnestly at the jagged hole in the side of the bull. Twenty boys ran in search of the ball and presently one of them returned with it, out of breath, and held it out to the manager. Bill Smith waved his hand and said:

Offers a Contract.

"Keep it as a souvenir, kid, you'll never see a hit like that again. That's all as you live." Then, turning to the young man, who still stood at the plate regarding him but said: "Come with me, Kelly," and walked away to the clubhouse. Reaching himself at a small desk he drew a printed form from one of the drawers and for general data the name that was heard in the room was the scratching of a pen. Finally the manager turned to Kelly and said:

"What amount shall I write to him?"

"What is it?" laughed the young man. "Something I want to send to President Kavanaugh of the Southern League for promulgation. It is a contract between the Atlanta Baseball Club and Gordon Kelly."

"Put it in with the smallest amount you pay anyone of your players, but I can't sign it, as I will not be of age until the 30th of April," replied Kelly.

There was more business of scratching a pen and then Bill Smith arose and pointed to the chair.

"Sit down and sign it," he ordered. "You may not be of age according to common law, but I'll take my chances with baseball law."

Kelly signed the document, arose from the chair and slipped off his uniform, accepting Whiskey's eager proffer of a rub-down.

"Much obliged, Whiskey, although I didn't work hard enough today to get up a sweat."

A Change of Heart.

"Anson, Anson, Mr. Kelly, any time at all you'll hit dat Old Whiskey right yere, ready to 'tend to yer, son." It was remarkable what a change had come over the colored street urchin he had seen with his own eyes the tremendous drive that crashed through the bull.

Gordon K. finished dressing and started to leave.

"What time is the call for practice on Monday, Mr. Manager?" he said. "No work on Monday, I suppose."

The clerk's sharp Gordon K. said: "I understand you say to you were played a game of ball?"

"That is correct."

"And you never saw a ball game in your life?"

"Right again."

"That's all. See you Monday morning."

Gordon Kelly went out and Bill Smith, turning to his assistant, said:

"I repeat, Whiskey, there goes a mystery for all the money you get in your clubhouse."

"Anson, Anson, he certainly an an' den son."

was to answer to him would introduce him.

"He is a fine young man, Deery, and

"Very much obliged, Judge, I'll drop around," replied Deery and hung up the receiver.

At 12:45 o'clock Deery "waiter!"

in the main dining room of the Piedmont

"You were fortunate after all," smiled

Mrs. Deery. "But Mildred was not in the

"You tell them, please, mother," pleaded Mildred, with a slight flush.

Thereupon Mrs. Deery related the incidents of the morning, exaggerating only so much as it is a woman's right to exaggerate. She omitted, however, the mean part played by Forrest Cain.

Neither did she mention the hand-holding episode, for in truth her daughter had not told her of it.

"That was very kind of you to turn smile. "As near as I can make out the

"Now I think you are doing for com-

Gordon could not fathom her reasons for

Mrs. Deery started another topic.

"My husband tells me you have lived of us," she said. "Didn't you find it

"Oh, mother, let Mr. Kelly tell us what he thinks of Atlanta," broke in Mildred quickly. "Isn't it a fine city, Mr. Kelly?"

She flushed again slightly, though Gor-

so. He answered:

President Mellen Will Probably Object to Being Thrown "to the Wolves"

A black and white illustration by Winsor McCay. A man in a suit and bow tie stands on a rocky ledge, looking down at a large, chaotic group of cats and dogs gathered below him. The animals are in various poses, some looking up at the man. A bird is flying in the sky above the man. The scene is set outdoors with trees in the background. The signature 'WINSOR MCCAY' is visible in the bottom right corner.

done—he took advantage of the work of others. Meat is ready-made food. It presents the "physical basis of life," protoplasm, or protein, in the most quickly and surely assimilable form. When man became carnivorous, he did not cease to be frugivorous. On the contrary, he used his growing intelligence to develop still further his ability to derive body-power and brain-power from vegetable food. One of the most striking statements made by Dr. Hutchinson is, in substance, that meat eating stimulates both the appetite and the digestive power for vegetable foods.

Massachusetts Needs a Paid Board of Health, on the Job All the Time

The question of reorganizing the State Board of Health now commands the attention of the Legislature. The epidemic at Canton warns us that we cannot do too much to increase the efficiency of the State Board of Health.

The members of this board should be properly paid for their services. The work of a State Board of Health has now become altogether too exacting to be well done by a volunteer board. The State supervision of our health requires the expert service of more than one man of ability and it requires all the time of all those who undertake its duties. This we cannot expect from mere volunteers.

The authority of the board ought to be greatly extended. It should require the local Boards of Health to establish such systems of inspection and to make such regulations for the prevention of the disease as it determines is necessary and proper.

Where the local Board of Health either refuses or neglects to carry out the instructions of the State Board, then the State Board should act under the authority given it in Chapter 75 of the Revised Laws.

Asks: "Will Man Ever Cease to Be a Meat Eater?"

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

WHEN the earliest ancestors of man got down out of their trees and began to walk about the earth with upright spines and flattened feet, one of the first arts that they acquired was that of throwing stones. A monkey can hurl a coconut from a tree, but he cannot hit anything. A limb that is half leg and half arm cannot be effectively employed for throwing. Accurate throwing is one of the minor fine arts, and it could be said that a man is sure standing on end, surely and yet delicately balanced upon a pair of agile legs, and provided with two arms amazingly cunning and perfect in their mechanism. If you are a baseball pitcher you will see that he needs BOTH his arms and BOTH his legs.

As soon as the original ap-man, having descended permanently to the ground, found that he could not be a marksman, he began to kill birds and small animals with stones. While he inhabited his trees he had been a "frugivorous" animal; that is, he fruit-eater. Like most of the apes and monkeys today. But when he got among the "carnivorous," or flesh-eating, animals of the world before the branches, he quickly learned to live on the ground, devouring the animals that he killed; and, because he was the only one that could throw—first stones, and then sharpened sticks, or javelins—he excelled all the others in the

Thus, man, starting as a vegetarian, while he lived in tree tops, became a hunter and a meat-eater after he descended to the ground and began to walk upright. But he did not abandon his fruit-eating, and so he became an "omnivorous" animal, that is, an eater of both animal and vegetable food. I am not sure but that he may have been the first typical animal of this class, for while some of the lower animals can be taught, or driven, to eat both kinds of food, yet, as a whole, they confine themselves to one or the other.

I am led to draw this ideal picture of early man by a perusal of a most interesting article, in the May GOOD HOUSEKEEPING MAGAZINE, by Dr. Woods Hutchinson, in which he puts, in attractive form, some of the latest conclusions of medical and hygienic science concerning the perpetually important question of

In that article Dr. Hutchinson seems to explode many of the modern fads about eating. It is best to let him speak for himself on that subject, and so I shall not repeat what he says, only remarking that some of his statements will probably surprise many of his readers, and open the eyes of all. Compare, for instance, his averments about rheumatism with what the "family doctor" has been

For my part I declare myself a believer in the good effects of the omnivorousness of man. It he had remained in his original trees, feeding on fruits and nuts, he would never have developed his brain until it put him at the head of the animal creation. When he got down and learned to throw he took the first step in a wonderful advance, and he took a second in the same direction when he began to eat the most digestible and nourishing of all foods, meat. In doing that he did what every successful creature has always
